WANTS DEMOCRATS TO POLL FULL VOTE

Congressman Page Urges Strong Organization of Party in State

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Raleigh, N. C., September 7.—Here conferring with Chairman A. H. Eller, at the State Democratic headquarters, is Hon. R. N. Page, Congressman from the Seventh district and member of the National Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. He says the outlook for Democratic control in the Sixty-first Congress is brightening every day, the fight between the two wings of the Republican party in many parts of the country giving every assurance of the election of Democratic Congressmen from many districts heretofore considered rock-ribbed Republican. The trend in the Northwest and in the New England States, too, he says, is decidedly toward Democracy as the dominant political principle, and he says that his observation of the conditions in this State are that the Republicans, under the leadership of Congressman Morehead, with Ex-Senator Marion Butler as "coach," are organizing with a thoroughness that they have not attempted in a long while, with a determination to poll a full vote. He declares that Democrats must realize that they are up against a fight in this State, and that forces must be organized, so that there will be yet other gains in the strength of the Democratic party.

Friends here are especially interested in a call that has come to Rev. John E. White, D. D., a native of Wake county, now pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Atlanta, to take the pastorate of the Calvary Baptist Church, Kansas City. Dr. White grew up at Cary, this county, is a Wake Forest College man, and lived in Raleigh a number of years before going to Atlanta ten years ago.

By noon to-day the mercury had climbed here to 95 degrees, making this the hottest day of the year. The temperature yesterday was 94 degrees. Raleigh's hottest September record in the Weather Bureau history, E. J. Parrish and others. Another charter is for the R. J. Dunning Company, Aulander, N. C., capital $100,000, R. J. Dunning and others, for stock, bond, mortgage and other business.

CLOWES CASE BEGINS.
Man Charged With Making Attempt at Criminal Assault.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] Williamsburg, Va., September 7.—Judge D. G. Tyler convened a special term of the Circuit Court here this morning to try the case of the Commonwealth vs. John Clowes for attempted criminal assault upon Mrs. Carey, the young wife of Charles E. Carey, which is alleged to have occurred in this city on the night of August 13. The greater part of the morning was taken up with securing a jury and the preliminary arrangements for the trial.

Mrs. Carey, the victim of the alleged assault, was the first witness. Before she went on the stand the court excluded everybody save the attorneys and court officers. The witness was very positive in her identification of Clowes as her would-be assailant.

The most of the afternoon session was taken up with the examination of Mrs. Carey by R. M. Lett, for the defense. She proved a most reluctant witness and appeared to be on the verge of a collapse. Her testimony was not materially shaken by the cross-examination.

The Commonwealth's attorney, Norville L. Henley, being assisted by C. T. Morris, of South Boston, B. D. Peach and Frank Armistead, of Williamsburg, and R. M. Lett, of Newport News, are attorneys for the defendant. The case has attracted a large crowd of curious people, who were greatly disappointed when excluded from the courtroom by Judge Tyler. The trial will last several days.

Lightbody, an artilleryman attached to the Fifty-eighth Company, Heavy Coast Artillery, died in the Port Monroe Hospital to-day as the result of a peculiar accident, which came to him while bathing in Chesapeake Bay last month. He was diving from a board and struck the water with his head, receiving a terrible blow over the right lung. He recovered and thought no more of the accident until yesterday when an abscess formed in the injured lung and caused his death to-day. Army surgeons say that the lung was terribly torn by the blow. Ray, who occupied a room in the burned building, made a narrow escape from burning, to death, jumping from the second story to the ground. He was picked up in a semi-conscious condition and taken to a hospital. His condition is still precarious. A combustion of gas is said to have caused the fire.
